

e-Vitale : New full online service makes electronic claim processing easy and simple

Montpellier, France – 15 June 2010: Health professionals using computers to help them in their medical and administrative practice are commonly facing non productive constraints such as maintenance, updates or data backup that consume quality time. CGM France (CompuGroup® Medical France) introduces e-Vitale, a 100% web electronic claim processing solution with unique features.

Starting January 1st 2011, the French national health insurance will impose a special tax onto health professionals for each invoice produced outside the electronic claim processing work flow. e-Vitale offers the opportunity to doctors and paramedics to manage their e-claims more effectively. They will only need to access the new service using a high speed internet connection to create, secure and send the e-claims to be processed by the French NHS. Users will then experience the following benefits:

- Global availability, available from anywhere on the internet natively
- An intuitive user interface, only 3 mouse clicks are needed to complete the process
- No software installation or maintenance to perform, the service is always up to date
- No data nor system backup to perform, the service is available round the clock in full security
- Not technical platform dependant, MsWindows and MacOS compatible
- Compatible with most patient card readers, including portable devices

The service works as if the software were installed locally. It is a web-based application hosted on a dedicated technical platform managed by Le Réseau santé social® a specialized internet service provider.

In addition, the e-Vitale technology allows innovative pricing approaches such as On Demand or pay per claim system and open new possibilities such as OEM integration or full solution packaging including supporting hardware (laptop, card reader...) and the internet connection.

e-Vitale is readily available for all health professionals, in both MsWindows and MacOS compatible versions from AXILOG® and Le Réseau santé social®, both CompuGroup Medical France companies . Full detail on the current offers and more product information can be found on the distributor web sites:
